

COMPANY PROFILE

We help improve the efficiency and effectiveness of your organisation by providing solutions for managing key business information.

Information is the lifeblood of any organisation. Having the right data available in the right place at the right time can have an enormous impact on the outcomes they deliver for their patients and clients.

Whilst organisations often have finance, payroll and other key business support systems, there can be a gap in effectively processing, protecting and managing documents and the relationships that underlie them. Without effective management of these documents and relationships, health and social care organisations can be exposed to significant risk as well as inefficiencies.

Fraame are the experts at filling this gap. Our staff have many years experience in delivering information management solutions to health, social care and commercial organisations. We provide advice and solutions to help you make even more of a difference.

We are a proven Australasian provider of FileVision, the document and relationship management system for the health and social care sectors.

Fraame has offices in Christchurch, New Zealand and Sydney, Australia.
